

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS.

Yesterday morning Messrs. Woodburn and Coffin appeared before the Board of State Examiners and asked that they advertise the Constitutional Amendments voted on at the special election of 1889. The Board, represented by Governor Stevenson and Attorney General Alexander, declined to order the amendments advertised again, and mandamus proceedings were at once begun in the Supreme Court.

Messrs. Woodburn and Coffin attacked the constitutionality of the special election law passed by the last Legislature on the grounds that there was no proper provision made for registration as the constitution provided. They claimed that if the election was void it was time to find it out now so that the defects could be remedied at the next general election.

Many of the amendments adopted by the people were of great importance. There was so much difference of opinion regarding the matter that no one could be certain when the next Legislature met.

The attorneys presented a long array of authorities to show that the law was not in accordance with the provisions of the constitution relating to elections and if the dead registration list of 1887 could be galvanized into life, then why not that of 1884?

Attorney General Alexander admitted that the question was a very serious one, but that the amendments, even if improperly submitted, were submitted in good faith, the people voted on them in good faith and the result was final.

The Court took the case under advisement.

HOW TO PAY NEWSPAPERS.

The County Commissioners of Orange county, Cal., fixed such a low rate for official advertising that the seven newspapers of the county addressed a communication to the Board declining to do the work. Commenting on this the Los Angeles Express says:

A good business house pays its commercial travelers so that they may dress well and live well. It is profitable to do so. A wisely conducted Government pays its foreign ministers so that they may live abroad in such a manner as will not bring reproach or contempt upon their country. Some such policy as this should guide the people of any section in dealing with their newspapers, which are to great an extent their representatives abroad as well as at home, and which perform so important functions for the whole community. The public printing and private advertising should be paid for with reasonable liberality, and such printing should be given to the old established papers, which are with the community and are a part of it every day or every week in the year, as the case may be, and not to the piratical sheets which spring up like fungi during a temporary boom or political campaign. To give public printing to such evanescent newspapers, because they offer to do it cheap, is to do the community an injury.

FEDERAL ELECTION BILL.

The Democracy are fairly frothing at the mouth over the bill which guarantees a fair election to all and an honest count.

The new bill is regarded by the Southern Democrats as a tyrannical invasion of their vested rights. They have so long held the Republican voter in check in the South that they regard it as something absolutely outrageous that they can no longer drive the negroes from the polls and say to the Republican white man that he shall only vote as they dictate.

The stormy protest that comes up from the Democratic press is an eloquent endorsement of the bill, and shows beyond question that such a measure was needed long ago.

We ask in all candor of our Democratic brethren, Does this bill in any way prevent you from voting as you please, or having that vote counted?
